MADE MASTERFULLY

The feeling of a Wordsworth writing instrument resting in your hand is unmistakable. Smooth, sleek and perfectly contoured - as if made for your fingertips alone, as your hand glides across the page. Each pen is handcrafted and carefully hand-tested. Don’t simply write, create.

DEFINING ELEGANCE

We’ve come to define elegance as the meeting of grace and aesthetic design. The perfect mesh of fine metals, distinctive detail and writing pleasure that creates an unmatched elegance and stroke of sophistication. Wordsworth Pens: as elegant as the words you create.

Fountain Pen Parts

Your fountain pen consists of six parts when assembled - the cap, the nib, the feed, the section, barrel and piston converter, which is found inside the barrel. The converter requires a fountain pen bottled ink. The cartridge is a self-contained disposable unit filled with ink. Ink cartridges are more commonly used than converters.

Cartridge Fountain Pen

STEP 01

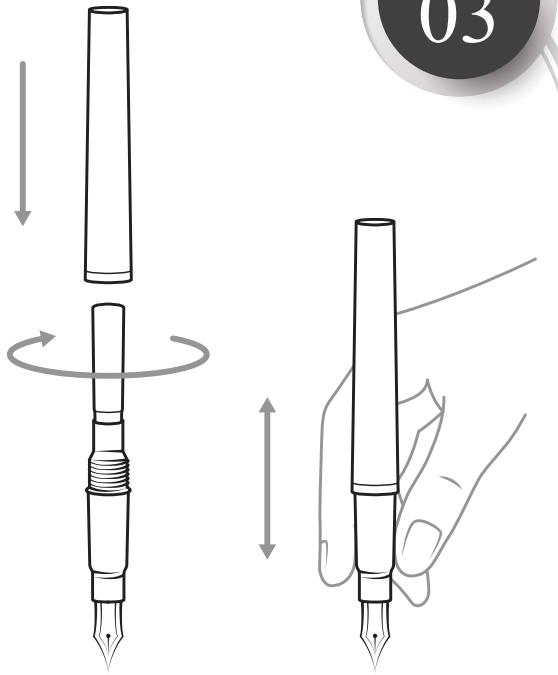

Remove the piston converter by gently pulling it away from the nib.

STEP 02

Insert a fountain pen cartridge into the nib and push firmly until the catridge seats itself. You may need to wiggle the ink cartridge until it is secured into the nib. You will hear a small click.

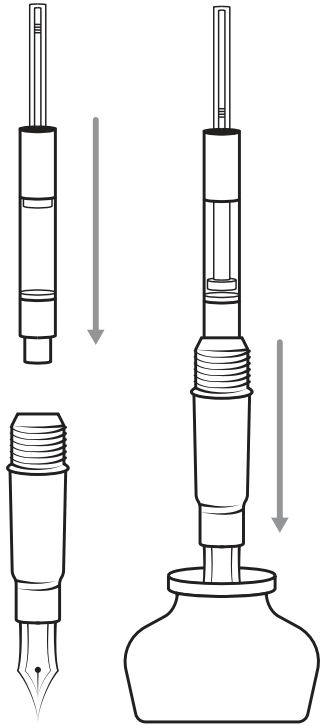

STEP 03

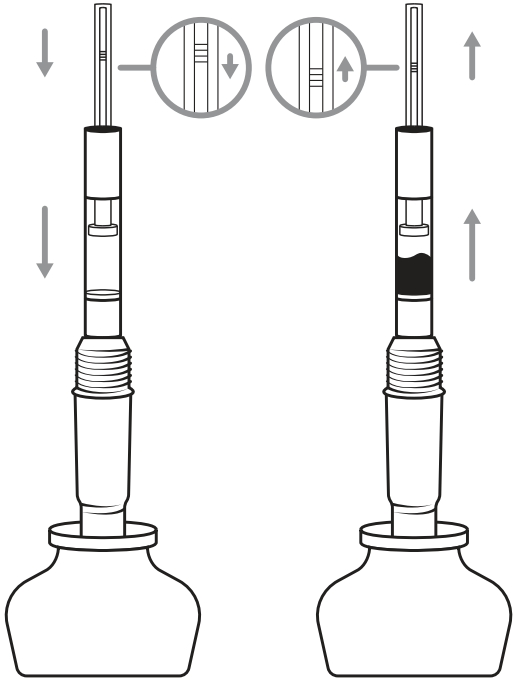

Screw the barrel back on and gently shake the fountain pen with the nib facing downwards a few times. This will get the ink flowing down into the nib.

Cleaning of a Fountain Pen

- Wordsworth & Black recommends cleaning your fountain pen approximately every three months to preserve its pristine condition. Especially if the ink has dried up due to lack of use, the feeder system is blocked, a different colour of ink is to be used or the ink flow becomes irregular or stops.

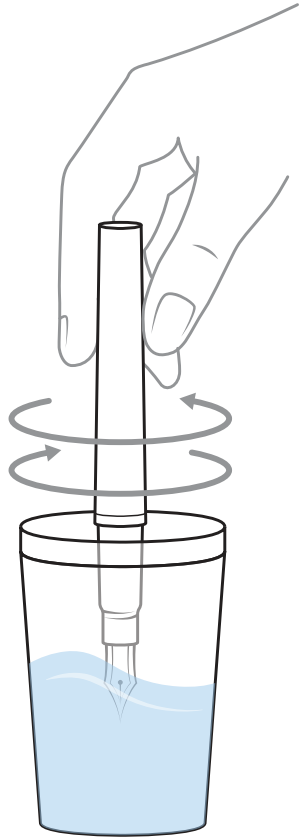

- For cleaning, use only lukewarm water without any chemical products and repeat the filling process several times until water comes out noticeably cleaner. It is impossible to prevent condensation after the cleaning process inside the cap. Condensation can dissolve traces of dried ink, causing a colour change in the new ink. Therefore, always be careful to clean the nib and cap with a damp lint-free cloth.

- To avoid leakage, keep the writing instrument fully filled with new ink and carry the fountain pen with the nib pointing upwards.
